Dear Ken

Re: Tralee Development

I have considered the contents of several emails apparently sent by Canberra Airport, encouraging recipients to submit an objection to the proposed rezoning of the area known as South Jerrabomberra, but referred to in the emails as Tralee. One of these is quoted at <http://www.aviationbusiness.com.au/news/canberra-airport-calls-for-support>. All contain a claim that this rezoning would result in a curfew and/or "noise sharing" at Canberra Airport.

My commentary on these is as follows.

Exposure to aircraft noise at Tralee is no different to a large number of other areas around airports across Australia. Most of these airports are curfew-free and only one (Sydney) has "noise sharing" in the sense implied in these emails. Most residents in those areas are not significantly affected by the noise, although a small proportion are. New residential developments have been created in these areas without resulting in any changes to airport operations.

There is no reason to believe that residential development in Tralee will result in changes to the existing or future operation of Canberra Airport.

Yours faithfully
